

Sustainability during Challenging Times: An Exploration of Possibilities for Non-Profit Executive Directors and Decision Makers

Sustainability of the non-profit organization is challenging under “normal” circumstances. The current economic decline is hitting all of us hard, especially those organizations and agencies that serve sectors of the population that are economically challenged to begin with.

We are inviting you to join your colleagues in a facilitated discussion to explore, share and identify the problems, resources and solutions facing your organization. Our intention is that you will leave the call with more options and ideas than what you came with. There is strength and richness in collaboration. We believe that this is the way of the future. There will be no charge for these calls. You can attend either or both calls.

When: Two Thursdays, July 24 and July 31

Time: 7:30 pm Eastern

Where: Our Conference Line

We will email the # once you confirm your attendance.

Who we are: Coaching4Value is a coaching and training company dedicated to maximizing the value our clients create in the world. We catalyze individuals and teams to create sustainable, mission-driven success through their relationships with themselves, their teammates and their place in the world. Our founding partners, JR Miller and Monique Morimoto Flaherty, MS, CPCC (www.soulworkscoaching.com) and our newest affiliate coach, Ted Behr, M. Ed., CPCC (www.uncommonsuccessco.com) bring a combined 30+ years of coaching, facilitation, training and consulting experience to their for-profit and non-profit clients.
